TRISH CULBRETH
Deputy Director
Office of Small Business Programs

Trish Culbreth is the Deputy Director of the Office of Small Business Programs for the Defense Logistics Agency (DLA). She supports DLA leadership on small business issues and works to increase small business participation in DLA acquisitions. As a small business champion, she promotes small business utilization to strengthen the industrial base that fulfills DLA's mission as America's Combat Logistics Support Agency.

Ms. Culbreth previously served as a Senior Small Business Advocate at the U.S. Department of State, Office of Small and Disadvantaged Business Utilization (OSDBU) and has supported the small business community for 15 years. While at State, she implemented a successful Mentor-Protégé Program and ensured the Department met its Small Business Subcontracting Goal during the ten years she was Subcontracting Program Manager.

Prior to her government service, Ms. Culbreth spent seven years in non-profit business development. She holds a Master's Degree in Business from Webster University, a Bachelor of Arts degree from the University of South Carolina, and an Associate's Degree from Trident Technical College in Charleston, South Carolina. She is serving as the Secretary of the OSDBU Directors' Interagency Council
