

Hall of Fame Inductees

Stephen A. Brookes

is being posthumously inducted into the Defense Logistics Agency Troop Support Hall of Fame this third day of November 2010. His induction is based on his exceptional contributions to the Clothing and Textile directorate as well as his dedication to the Business System Modernization, now the Enterprise Business Systems program. Mr. Brookes was a professional logistician demonstrating expertise across tactical, operational and strategic levels. His key assignments in increasingly responsible positions enabled him to help shape the future for DLA's Information Technology operations. He filled formal and informal leadership roles across DLA Troop Support. His work ethic, organizational skills, and tremendous managerial abilities made him an invaluable leader in determining DLA's technological advancement. Mr. Brookes' subordinates excelled due to his strong leadership and mentoring capabilities. He was a caring and concerned supervisor who acknowledged the skills of his subordinates and in an environment where anything could go wrong his strength of personality, kind words of encouragement, sense of perspective and fair play created an ideal work environment. Mr. Brookes was a loved and respected supervisor. His dedication to DLA Troop Support during his tenure set him apart from his coworkers. We have, and will all continue to benefit, from the contributions and leadership of Stephen Brookes.
