“Psycho- Geometrics, The Art of Influencing People and the Science of Understanding Them”

Dr. Furiga explained how being predominately attracted to different shapes, a circle, rectangle, square, triangle, and a squiggly line can suggest various personality traits.

Being aware of our own personality traits as well as other people’s traits enhances our ability to interact with each other on a daily basis, personally and professionally. Everyone who cares about their work must be able to get along with people to work effectively.

“Life is 10% of what you make it and 90% of how you take it. Attitude is important.”
