Computers For Learning Program (CFL)

The Computers For Learning program is available to provide useful IT equipment to schools and educational nonprofit organizations serving grades prekindergarten through 12 at no cost.

What is the Computers For Learning Program (CFL)?

This program evolved as a means to implement Executive Order 12999 Educational Technology: Ensuring Opportunity for all Children in the Next Century.

The executive order encourages agencies, to transfer/donate computers and related peripheral equipment excess to their needs directly to schools and some educational nonprofit organizations. The CFL program's ambitious goal is to make modern computer technology an integral part of every classroom so that children have the opportunity to be educated to their full potential. With the help of schools and nonprofit organizations this program can be extremely successful.

What is the cost?

Nothing! Schools and educational nonprofit organizations do not pay for excess computer equipment they receive through the CFL program. Some of the computer equipment may need some upgrading and minor maintenance but all property received from the CFL Program is at no cost. Schools and educational nonprofits are responsible to pick up or arrange for shipment of requisitioned computers.

What type of equipment is available?

Monitors, CPUs, Projectors, Mice, Keyboards, Laptops, Hubs, Routers ... and more!
