The Department of Defense is restricted from purchasing foreign ball and roller bearings by the Defense Federal Acquisition Regulation Supplement (DFARS) at DFARS 225.7009 & DFARS Clause 252.225.7016. The restriction was changed by a final ruling of the Defense Acquisition Regulations Council as of December 08, 2010.

A "domestic" bearing or bearing component can now be defined as that which has been manufactured in the U.S., its outlying areas or Canada; and for each ball or roller bearing the cost of the bearing components (bearing element, retainer, inner race and outer race) manufactured in the US, its outlying areas or Canada exceeds 50% of the total cost of the bearing components of that ball and roller bearing.

As the offering contractor, you are required to declare the information below in reference to the material being offered.

- (1) the manufacturing location of the item being procured, _____ and
- (2) the percentage of the total cost of the bearing components (bearing element, retainer, inner race and outer race) that were manufactured in the US, its outlying areas or Canada. _____

If you are not the manufacturer of the material, you must obtain this information from the manufacturing source and provide that information as expeditiously as possible.

Failure to provide this information upon request from the buyer may result in your quote not being considered for award. Please fill in the blanks above and sign and date the document in the space provided below.

If you have further questions regarding this DFARS restriction, or how the changes will affect procurements or the foreign bearing waiver process, please call or email the Foreign Bearings Project Officer, Donna Harris at (804) 279-3857, or Donna.Harris@dla.mil.
